ROWNTREE TO BE APPOINTED FIRE-WATER COMMISSIONER TOMORROW; CATLIN ON POLICE

COUNCILMAN JOHN CATLIN, acting mayor during the vacation of Mayor James Thoburn, will appoint Bernard Rowntree commissioner of fire and water and John Catlin commissioner of police and lights tomorrow. His intention to perform this official act was stated off the record Wednesday evening, after the regular October meeting. Tomorrow is the earliest date the appointment can legally be made, as it is just 30 days since the ordinance splitting the commissionership of fire and police went into effect. Since early this year when Robert Norton resigned from the council where he was commissioner of fire and police to become chief of police, Catlin has been acting commissioner. Rowntree was commissioner of lights and water. The change was made to satisfy two factions, one of which wished Catlin to hold the commission, the other favoring Rowntree. As sentiment seemed evenly balanced, a compromise was in order. Mayor Thoburn gave the additional reason of wishing to balance better the duties of the commissioners.

Two new civic committees were appointed Wednesday night, one to study the proposed widening of Junipero as a major artery in and out of Carmel; the other to investigate the whole question of street signs with a view to establishing a new policy, possible revision of ordinances affecting signs, both on public and private property. On the Junipero committee were named Paul Mercurio, Helen Ware Burt, Dr. Ferdinand W. Haasis, Francis Whitaker, Frank Cole. County Engineer Howard Cozzens will be asked to consult with the group, which will hold its first meeting with Acting Mayor Catlin at the Forge in the Forest next Wednesday morning, and go over the roadway which it is proposed to straighten and widen. This was suggested as a possible WPA project. The sign committee consisting of Councilmen Catlin and Rowntree, Miss Clara Kellogg, Thelma B. Miller and City Inspector B. W. Adams, was asked to meet Wednesday afternoon at the Forge in the Forest.

Specific violations of ordinances governing signs were cited by Councilman Burge and others. In several cases it was suggested that the police tactfully advise the transplanting of signs now on city property to the owner's adjacent premises. But this brought to the fore the question as to what extent the village wishes to tolerate signs at all. Revision of existing laws governing them was suggested by Catlin; Burge thought it a good idea to call in the advisory committee before taking action.

Catlin reported that Architect Milton Latham has prepared tentative plans for the firehouse, that the firemen were to inspect them at their meeting last night.

Two ordinances and a resolution of intention to call for bids passed second reading; the first, asked by the water company to expedite laying of mains on Ocean avenue, clarifies the manner in which street paving shall be restored; the second authorizes the city to make a contract

Tom Brown Elected President of Sunset School Student Body

In the run-off election of Sunset student body officers at the end of last week, Tom Brown was elected president, Ann Millis, secretary, and Howard Levinson, business manager. At the primaries, Billy Froili received a clear majority vote which elected him vice president, so that he was not obliged to enter the finals. First official action of the new business manager was to appoint Gordon Ewig traffic captain and John Tait basketball manager.

SEWAGE PLANT CHIEF SOURCE OF POLLUTION

THAT the Carmel sewage disposal plant is the chief source of contamination of the lagoon at the mouth of Carmel river is the belief of Dr. R. M. Fortier, county health officer, who visited The Pine Cone office this week, and reported on the survey which he had been asked to make by Mayor Thoburn's recreation committee. If the disposal plant were made sanitary, he stated, waters of the lagoon would be as safe to swim in as those of any other river, irrigation ditch, or similar places where people swim without serious consequences.

Not sand-seepage, but pollution from the ocean is responsible for the presence in the lagoon of colonic bacilli, which, while not in themselves dangerous, indicate the presence of contamination. Raw sewage allowed to run onto the sands at the disposal plant, finds its way quickly to the ocean. At high tide waves and spray dash over the adjacent sandbar at the mouth of Carmel river. Rather than purifying the lagoon, the salt water carries contamination direct from the disposal plant into the lagoon.

Other sources of contamination, such as the seagulls which rest and feed on the lagoon, drainage from upstream and from irrigated fields, Dr. Fortier described as minor. The lagoon was posted by the health department as unsafe for swimming—and the signs have been repeatedly stolen—because the inadequate disposal plant presents a constant source of danger.

"If you Carmelites want to swim in the lagoon," said Dr. Fortier, "your first step is to do something about that disposal plant. Then—we'll see."

Postmistress Cator Breaks Arm In Fall

Postmistress Irene Campbell Cator is confined to her home with a broken right arm, sprained and torn ligaments in the same member, and a sprained ankle, result of a fall on Seventh street near the Village Sandwich Shop. Building on the adjacent corner, resulting in a torn-up sidewalk is reported to have caused Mrs. Cator's misstep. She fell on a stone, shattered and twisted her arm. In intense pain at first, she is now resting easily, and hopes to be able to return to the post office in about two weeks, though it will be many weeks before she is able to use her right hand. Assistant Postmaster John Nye is in charge during her absence.

Near Half Inch of Rain Falls In Carmel

Nearly half an inch of rain fell in Carmel Monday night, accompanied by such thunder and lightning as the oldest inhabitants declare have never been seen here before. The lightning was of the forked variety usual in the middle west and east, rather than the "sheet" lightning more common to this coast. No serious damage was reported. The thunder was sharp, ominous and frequent, disturbing the slumbers of Carmelites unaccustomed to such racket.

Precipitation of .42 of an inch was reported at the Carnegie Coastal Laboratory, which, added to the .70 inch of the freak August storm, makes a total of 1.12, and the season scarcely started yet. Last year at this time .23 of an inch of rain had fallen.

Carmel Pastors Cooperate With Roosevelt In U. S. Social Survey

SHARPLY contrasted with the sneering attitude of the Pacific Grove pastor was the response of Carmel's clergy to President Roosevelt's "letter to clergymen," asking their reaction to new social legislation, and how it can best be administered. Venturing to doubt the sincerity of the president's interest in the aged, the crippled and the unemployed, the Christian leader in Pacific Grove branded the appeal as "politics." The letter, received early this week by clergymen all over the United States, asks for a report on local conditions, suggestions as to how the government can better serve the people, comments on the new old age pensions, aid for crippled children, unemployment insurance provisions in federal law, and suggestions how the Works Program can be best administered to provide work and benefit the entire nation.

"Of course I shall answer the president's letter," said Rev. Austin B. Chinn of All Saints church, when queried by The Pine Cone. "I shall devote careful thought to it, make as accurate and full a report as possible. It seems to me distinctly bad taste to question the president's sincerity and good faith in this matter. Our political beliefs should not lead to cynicism as to the good motives of others of different beliefs."

"The letter, of course, was broadcast to obtain the general opinion of a particular group, on a subject in which they are particularly interested and well informed," said Rev.

Melvin C. Dorsett of Community church. "In the same way, President Roosevelt at the beginning of his administration, called the business men of the nation together to get helpful suggestions from them. It is the privilege and the duty of the president to know what people are thinking."

"Of course the president will not read personally the answers that come to him from the clergymen," Rev. Dorsett added. "No great executive reads all the mail that comes to his desk, only that which is private and imperative. But the results will be tabulated and presented to him as representative of group opinion." Rev. Dorsett answered and mailed the letter immediately, stating his personal reactions, as requested by the president.

Father Michael O'Connell of Carmel Mission was away most of this week and has not had time to consider his action. He stated, however, that he plans to answer the president's letter.

EARL WERMUTH OFF DUTY WITH BAD HAND INFECTION

Police Officer Earl Wermuth has been off duty for several days with a badly infected right hand. A sliver was the cause of the mischief. Earl had a whiff of gas when Dr. John Gray lanced the injury several days ago, drained off a certain amount of corruption.

for lease of garbage dumping facilities; the resolution of intention clears the way for an electric franchise to the P. G. and E., which has long served the district. City Attorney Argyll Campbell read the promise of the company to pay for legal publication in connection with the granting of the franchise.

Two ordinances were given first reading; one regulating the manner of raising pay of city officials, so that changes may be made by resolution rather than amending ordinances. Wish of the council to raise the salary of Police Judge Wood inspired this change. The second new ordinance governs the building of porches and balconies over city property, permits the council to allow such ornaments provided they meet certain specifications, provides that violators may be punished to the extent of $300 fine or 150 days in jail.

At the request of the committee for the restoration of the Theatre of the Golden Bough, permission was given for the rehanging of the antique sign, brought from Switzerland by Edward Kuster, which designated the theater before it was renamed Carmel theater and used for motion pictures. The Drs. Craig, chiropractors, were given permission to hang a sign at their location in La Rambla building.

Street Commissioner Burge was given permission to enter into contract for the purchase of gasoline for city motor equipment, for four or six months, at his discretion, when he brought up the prospect of a saving of two cents per gallon in cost. His desire for a combination scarifier and grader was again emphasized, when representatives of rival tractor companies were allowed to describe the merits of their respective machines. They were asked to submit prices in writing.

The council will meet again for unfinished business on Oct. 16.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schuyler was in Oakland for several days this week.

Veteran Pianist In Recital

HIGH moments of the piano recital played by Henri Deering at Denny-Watrous Gallery Wednesday evening were the Schubert Impromptu in B flat major and Debussy's "Claire de lune." An enthusiastic audience was called together hurriedly and largely by personal invitation when the pianist, visiting here with Noel Sullivan, consented to repeat in public what he had generously offered to small social groups. He is the veteran of many concerts in this country and abroad, and has done considerable playing for the radio.

The opening theme of the Schubert was flawlessly clear, every phrase and note receiving its proper value, enunciated in soft, singing tones. The player's same definite, individual touch made the second Debussy number a thing of beauty, though in "Reflets dans l'eau" and "L'Isle joyeuse" there were moments of harshness.

Deering's Chopin was more pleasing than his Brahms. He played the Fantasia Impromptu—the piece from which the theme for "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" was taken—three etudes, and the E Minor Valse, which was particularly enjoyable because he refrained from the headlong tempo at which this valse is sometimes taken, made it possible to follow clearly its various melodic themes.

The concert opened with a Bach chorale arranged by Rummel—which this reviewer missed, through tardiness—followed by the Schubert Impromptu; Brahms' Intermezzo in A major and Rhapsodie in B minor; Mendelssohn's "Variation Serieuses"; the Chopin and Debussy groups.—T. B. M.

WHOLE PENINSULA COOPERATING IN REORGANIZATION OF DRAMATICS HERE

COMMUNITY dramatics are off to a flying start, with a better chance of whole-hearted cooperation and support from the entire peninsula than for many years, in the belief of many who attended an organization meeting Tuesday evening in the old Arts and Crafts hall, now known as the green room. "It's like the old days in Carmel, with all the drama groups working together," one veteran expressed it. More than 30 men and women attended the meeting, and more than twice that number have signed up as willing to work in any suitable capacity, either acting, doing technical work or in the business end.

Harriet Smith, who will direct the first production, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," to be given Oct. 25 and 26, explained the organization plan under which the group will function. The definite and strong cohesion of the group into working units, as she explained them, gave every hope of a group that will be able to function efficiently, and have a good deal of fun in the process.

"Mary Dugan" was to have been cast last night or this morning, after another general meeting last night, at which the script was to be read. Miss Smith urged strongly a good turn-out for this meeting whether or not parts were desired for the first show. She wants to hear people read a variety of roles, in order to judge the material at hand, with a view to future casting.

"It's up to all of you to read for the parts you want, or to let me know you want parts," she said. After her outstanding success with her Pinon Players this summer, confidence is general that the young directress will produce worthy shows, help with the founding of an enduring, democratic organization.

The organization will not be closed at any time; new registrations will continually be accepted, and no one will have to work in every show.

With Miss Smith as director and heading the technical staff for the first show and Lloyd Weer as business manager, the following other technical assignments have been made:

Milton Latham, designer of set, overseeing construction, which will be headed by Evert Sholund, with Col. C. G. Lawrence, W. C. Shields and Randal Cockburn assisting him.

Scene painting will be in charge of Viola Sparks, assisted by Kay Jones and Franklin Dixon.

Charlotte Lawrence will head the properties department, and have charge of securing furniture, assisted by Grace Ralbourne, Josephine Kern, Mrs. Frank Castagna and Hil-dreth Masten, the latter being assigned to hand and trim props. Frances Hudgins and Virginia Stanton will costume the show. Lighting has been assigned to Lyle Bates, assisted by Millicent Sears. Bill Stanford will be stage manager, assisted by Ross Burton, Scott Douglas and Thom Nelkirk.

Working under Business Manager will be the chairmen of publicity, advertising and tickets and their groups. The publicity committee includes Thelma B. Miller, Hal Garrot, Ross G. Miller and Richard Masten. A. C. Lafrenz and Frank Townsend will be responsible for advertising; Mr. and Mrs. Gabe Burnette and P. A. McCreery will have tickets. Ruth Bowen will be house manager, under her the ushers, Jessie Brown, Althea Kendall and Mrs. Thom Nelkirk. Robert Stanton and Major Chester A. Shepherd will be on the door.

These assignments will be for the first show only. Next month an entirely new set-up will be organized, so that all jobs will be rotated. The leading man in the first show may be furnace man next time.

Cosmopolitan Group Enjoys "Mexican" Party

Another of the successful "Mexican" parties was given Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Sylvia Meeter Jordan, with a group of guests international and cosmopolitan including natives of the Argentine, Mexico, France, Russia, Germany and the United States. The Argentine tango and Mexican folk dances were danced to typical music, and the Spanish-speaking guests contributed a group of folk-songs. These dances are the outgrowth of the Wednesday night meetings at the Aztec shop, devoted to study and discussion of Mexico and the Hispanic Southwest.

All Saints Guild To Hold Exhibit

Just a year ago All Saints guild held an exhibit of ancient and modern handicrafts which was such an outstanding success that repeated requests have been given for another, on a still larger scale. A committee is hard at work preparing for the exhibit, which will be held at the end of next week, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 10 and 11, each day from 2 o'clock to 8, at All Saints Parish house. Response for the request of the loan of interesting and valuable articles has been ready and eager, carrying out the spirit of "a year of Thanksgiving," which is the theme of all the church's activities this year.

As an example of the interesting articles which will be displayed, many of which were not in the exhibit last year, are the bed of Livingston, owned by Rev. T. J. Barkle of Pacific Grove, an ancient spool cot, owned by Mrs. Sumpter Earle and beautifully hand-made on her father's southern plantation; a bill of slave for a slave, perhaps the only one available in California; old samplers, books, pictures and jewelry, and any number of interesting oddities.

The children will find entertainment in a beautiful doll's house, which Mrs. C. W. Hollis of the Highlands has offered to loan.

On the committee to collect and arrange the exhibit are Rev. and Mrs. Austin B. Chinn, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wheldon, Mrs. Howard Reed, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. John W. Dickinson, Mrs. James McIntyre, Miss Darcy Gaw and James L. Cockburn.

A small admission fee will be charged.

NEXT WEDNESDAY'S AZTEC DANCE MAY BE LAST

Another dance featuring Mexican music will probably be the last dance of its kind given by the Aztec Studio group this season. It will be held Wednesday evening Oct. 9, instead of the regular Wednesday evening talk, and will be at the home of Mrs. Sylvia Meeter Jordan. Those wishing to attend must register beforehand at the Aztec Studio shop, where those who are not members of the group may also apply for invitations.

Dr. and Mrs. David Spence and their children, Jean and Barclay, have returned from a summer's visit in Scotland, with his mother and other relatives.

Unemployment Subject of Night School Class

Few years ago every group conversation turned sooner or later to prohibition, ended with an exchange of beer recipes. Today unemployment and the depression are subjects of paramount interest. As discussion material for a forum, they present rich possibilities. At Fred Bechdolt's current events group, sponsored by the Monterey Union High School under the adult education program, meeting last Monday evening at Sunset school, this was the assigned topic. After leading talks on technological unemployment, psychological effects of unemployment and relief, such interest was aroused during the general talk of this large subject and its many implications that it was decided to continue the topic at next Monday evening's meeting.

Intelligent and highly articulate is the group already meeting each Monday evening at 7:30. It will prove of interest to all who are interested in objective discussion of topics of moment.

A. C. Stoney Completes Three Building Jobs

Three building jobs have just been completed in Carmel by A. C. Stoney, general contractor.

The largest of these jobs is the home of Mrs. Rebecca Coolot and Mrs. Rita Elliot on Carmelo between Eleventh and Twelfth. This modern Spanish home was made ready for occupancy this week. The A. D. H. Company as plumbers, Jack Belvalle as wiring expert, Lewis as painter, and Overhulse as plastering contractor, cooperated with Stoney in finishing the home on schedule.

The newly remodelled Christian Science Church and the home of Alma Edler on the Mesa, are other jobs completed by Stoney recently.

The Work Lumber Company supplied all materials for all three jobs.

Conlon & Thorn Open Real Estate Office

In the Little Log Cabin on Dolores street, Conlon & Thorn this week opened a branch of their Monterey real estate and insurance office, taking this step because of the large amount of Carmel business which they are already handling. Carmelite Jack Morris will handle the real estate end of the business, and G. A. Walters, who has arrived with his family from San Francisco and will live here, has charge of the insurance branch.

DR. BRONNA CRAIG IS OPENING CARMEL OFFICE

Dr. F. Donwood Craig and Dr. Bronna Craig, his wife, foot specialists, are making their home in Carmel, and the latter is opening offices in La Rambla building, Lincoln and Ocean. Dr. Donwood Craig will continue to maintain his office in Pacific Grove. Both are graduates of the California College of Chiropractic.

CONTRASTING COLORS

Make bedroom closets more attractive by painting the interiors a color which will contrast with the main color in the bedroom. With a bedroom in which blue-green predominates use a warm rust tone. PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

WE were rather overwhelmed the other day by a visit from the beautiful Mlle. Audrey Kargere. She is the Parisienne costume designer and sculptor who is now touring this country with a collection of beautiful and authentic miniature costumes representing 50 years of feminine fashion. It was the hobby of a certain famous old French couturier to reproduce on a small scale the fashionable gown which he considered the finest of each year from the '30s to the present, often associating it with some historic event. The little costumes are made of the most beautiful materials, and are a parade of vanished and forgotten elegance.

Mlle. Kargere heard several years ago the collection was to be sold. She acquired it, and has used it as the point d'appui for a pioneer work in the field of fashion philosophy. She lectures and holds exhibits, and then interviews women, helping them to make the most of their own personalities through dressing individualistically and "inner awakening."

Sometimes she exhibits in galleries, sometimes in department stores or apparel shops. There are drawbacks to both, she says. The hook-up with the shops is apt, thru the store's promotional activities, to take a rather commercial turn, but in art galleries the appeal is mostly to the intellectuals, and these are not the women she wants to reach. "It is the little woman tied to her kitchen I want to help," she says.

Women clamor for what she has to give. The response is sometimes so intense it leaves her a bit breathless. The reason is not far to seek. Her own personality is so warm, vital and magnetic, she must give "the little women tied to their kitchens" — and to you and me as well — the feeling that they can emerge as beautiful dynamos from a conference with her. Warm-tinted olive skin, great velvety dark eyes, a mop of fluffy dark hair, and an entrancing accent. She is tremendously in earnest, sees her work as one phase of building a new world—helping women to realize the best that is within them, and so to enhance their collective power for the welfare of civilization.

Mlle. Kargere is in Pasadena this week but will return to Carmel, for a short rest if possible, and perhaps to put on her exhibit and lecture here.

FREDERICK PRESTON SEARCH, long associated with Carmel, and one of our brightest musical luminaries now adding to his fame elsewhere, is now at work on a string septette for the Kroll String Ensemble in New York City, according to word received by friends here. The quartet which he wrote expressly for Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was given its first hearing by the Pro Arte at Mills this summer.

Besides being cellist of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, Search thus adds to his reputation as one of the better known American composers. One of his recent works, Sextet in F minor for strings, received the following review in a New Zealand paper.

"In previous reviews we have remarked on the fact that the really significant American music is not as well known outside America as it should be. Those who suppose that jazz and crooning are modern America's sole (or even chief) contributions to music in our time are much in error. The work mentioned above is real music; music composed by a man of high artistic ideals and refined scholarship. . . This work and the Serenade would be welcome additions to the New Zealand B. M. S. programs this year. Much that is American which reaches our shores succeeds in giving a quite false impression of American standards. It will be a relief to turn from the eternal movie presentation of the manners and characteristics of the Chicago underworld to a study of culture of a great nation."

W. E. MARTIN of the Carmel Valley Martins was in the village this week. We caught him on the fly and asked for a bit of the historic lore which the Martins have at their fingertips, as one of the first families to settle in this vicinity. John Martin, the father, coming from Scotland via Canada, where the winters were too rigorous for the island-born people, came down to California in 1856, seeking a more compatible climate. He was a farmer first and last, and was not lured from the soil by any nonsense about gold-seeking, though as pastime he panned a little gold from Carmel river, recovering about $5 worth a day for a while, until the gravelly vein disappeared under the banks, would have required time and labor for exploitation which a busy farmer could not spare.

The present Mission ranch was the one established by John Martin, and the family home was not far from Carmel Mission. A grizzly bear mother made her nest in the Martin grain-field, and produced a litter of cubs there. Bears used to promenade Carmel beach in those days, licking up the fish that came ashore, and they scavenged freely about the old whalery on Point Lobos.

A bandit once took a pot-shot at Patriarch Martin on the road between the Mission and Monterey, but missed him. Later the same bandit killed another of the early settlers, was strung up in Monterey.

Masks Feature of Dance Concert

THE use of masks will be an added feature of the two dance concerts to be given in the Denny-Watrous Gallery by Myra Kinch and her assisting artists Oct. 11 and 12, Friday and Saturday of next week. The masks, both beautiful and grotesque, are used to great advantage by the young dramatic dancer in creating the exact mood and setting the proper emotional "pace" of the particular dance composition presented.

Miss Kinch, herself a clever actress and pantomimic artist, knows the importance of the proper facial expression in dance. In some compositions both the music and the dance are abstractions of a certain quality or feeling. In such cases the dancer's costume and entire setting should also be an abstraction; a completion of design devoid of expression.

Another effective use of masks by the Myra Kinch Dance Group is in affecting the weird and the grotesque. The strange and interesting appearance of the "death demons" and the "sorcerers" in the exotic Chinese ballet, "Marco Polo" is accentuated by the wearing of masks of demoniacal design.

Still another use for masks has been found by Miss Kinch in her clever comedy characterizations. Most of these are built on Myra Kinch's own ability as a comedienne, but one number, "Pollanka," a fat woman's dance, owes much of its irresistible fun to the use of mask. The "Pollanka" mask is by William Mortensen, a Laguna Beach photographic artist. The "Marco Polo" masks, and others, are done by David Dreyer, a Hollywood artist.

Myra Kinch is assisted by Foy Badger, feature male dancer, formerly of the Mordkin Ballet Company, and Manuel Galea, composer-pianist, and four young girl dancers from the studio of Dorothy Lyndall of Los Angeles.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"What is the chaff to the wheat? saith the Lord." These words from Jeremiah comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, Oct. 6, 1935, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Unreality." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one; . . . As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world . . . Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear" (Matt. 13: 38, 40, 43).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The seed of Truth and the seed of error, of belief and of understanding,—yea, the seed of Spirit and the seed of matter,—are the wheat and tares which time will separate, the one to be burned, the other to be garnered into heavenly places" (p. 525).

"Anything Goes" To Be Produced

"Anything Goes," the Cole Porter musical comedy sensation which bubbles with youth, zooms with speed, shouts smartness, and flashes wit, will be the attraction extraordinary at the Geary Theatre, in San Francisco starting Monday night, Oct. 14.

George Murphy, Shirley Ross, and Hugh O'Connell head the company of 70 in the production, said to be the most expensive and ambitious musical ever attempted in California. Fresh beautiful faces, whirlwind dances, spotless costumes emulating the 1936 trend, well trained voices, and massive, modern back-grounds, combine to win for "Anything Goes" the title of No. 1 entertainment.

The fast and funny story, embellished by tantalizing Cole Porter tunes, is all about a mix-up in the love affairs of a young American heiress (Vicki Cummings), an English peer (G. P. Huntley, Jr.), a youthful New York broker (George Murphy) and a night club hostess (Shirley Ross) who has given up being an evangelist for the larger opportunities of Broadway. Then there is a fleeing racketeer (Hugh O'Connell) who is deeply hurt because he is merely Public Enemy No. 13. Much of the action takes place on a lux-

Pal, Carmel's Pet, Goes Calling on Monterey Friends

A Carmelite visiting over the hill in Monterey the other day was struck all of a heap to see Pal, Carmel's mongrel pet, cavorting about the streets on a high old bender. He was obviously enjoying the change of scene, and had the appearance of one revisiting familiar haunts. Perhaps Pal visits Monterey frequently; he hikes in Carmel Woods and roams as far away as the Point. But does the mut-about-town hitch-hike, walk, or does someone take him over just for the ride, when he goes to Monterey? No one seems to know, and Pal just grins.

rious trans-Atlantic liner, and features such song hits as "You're the Top," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "Blow Gabriel Blow," brilliantly interpreted by an orchestra of 25.

Another feature of "Anything Goes" which has theatergoers talking is the stage setting, most elaborate and expensively constructed since the spectacular "Ben Hur" chariot race effect. There are nine changes of scene in the non-stop action.

Woman's Club to Lunch on Monday

A 1 o'clock luncheon at Pine Inn will open the 1935-36 season of Carmel Woman's Club next Monday, Oct. 7. Reservations for the luncheon should be made with Mrs. William Heathorne, Carmel 1151-W. The price will be 50 cents per plate.

Following the luncheon the regular October meeting will be held at 2:30 in the large west dining room of Pine Inn, where all meetings, including section meetings, will take place during the year. The garden section meetings are the only ones not to be held at the Inn, and these will be at private homes as heretofore. Mrs. Carlo Sutro Mobio will be the special attraction on the program, and in lovely costumes will give a selection of songs, different from those presented at the club last year. Her charming program last October was enthusiastically received by the club. Her accompanist, Mrs. Beatrice Anthony, will again be at the piano.

The first meeting of the current events section will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 9 at 10 o'clock at Pine Inn. This will be an organizing meeting to discuss plans for the year. This is the only section meeting to be held next week.

Dues are payable before or on the first meeting, Oct. 7, and amount to $4 to old members. New members will pay $5, the extra dollar paying the initiation fee. Those wishing to secure their membership cards in advance can do so by mailing check to the treasurer, Mrs. Clara Beller, Box 564. Guest cards for the opening meeting may also be procured from Mrs. Beller, or from any member.

Oriental Treasure Trove Is Displayed

At their studio on Guadalupe, Emma Kraft and Free Dean entertained a small group of their friends at tea last Friday afternoon, and Mrs. Dean showed the wealth of lovely things which she brought back with her from her long stay in Japan and China during the past year. Japanese prints, ceramics, antique weavings, a Mandarin coat, unusual and beautiful modern robes and other wearing apparel were included in the Oriental treasure trove. Particularly noteworthy was an authentic Japanese bridal kimono, of magnificent heavy silk, true to tradition in its use of black and soft colors, a complicated pattern of symbolic design.

After spending the summer here, Miss Kraft and Mrs. Dean will return to their winter home in Tujunga at the end of next week. Both are members of Carmel Art Association and have exhibited in the summer shows. They have had a studio in Carmel for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Heron gave a party Tuesday evening, in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the building of beautiful Seven Arts court. Also noted was the fact that two of the tenants, Mrs. C. A beautiful birthday cake was cut, and the evening was passed informally with conversation and reminiscences.

Mr. and Mrs. Heron's guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Heffling, Mr. and Mrs. George Seidenbeck, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Herron, Mrs. Paul Beygrau, Mrs. Louise Fry, Mrs. C. ART NOTES

THE 1935 Carnegie International Exhibition of Modern Painting will open in Pittsburgh on Oct. 17 and continue through Dec. 8. It is the only annual international show of paintings in the world. Special interest will center on this year's exhibition because during the time of the show, the institute will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Andrew Carnegie, the founder of the International, the donor of the building in which it is held, and the person who provided the funds that permit the Carnegie Institute to hold the show each year.

More nations will be represented in this, the Thirty-third International, than ever before. For the first time painters from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Mexico have been invited to exhibit.

Ninety-three artists are making their initial appearance in a Carnegie International this year. A total of 366 paintings will make up the exhibition. Of these, 279 are coming from Europe, South America, Mexico, and Canada, and 87 from the United States.

Immediately after the International closes at Pittsburgh, the entire foreign section will be shown in Cleveland at the Cleveland Museum of Art from Jan. 2 to Feb. 14, 1936, and in Toledo at the Toledo Museum of Art from March 7 to April 18, 1936.

THE San Francisco Society of Women Artists is making ready for its annual exhibition which will be held in the main gallery of the San Francisco Museum of Art.

Six prizes will be given. The first prize of $100 will go to the best work in the exhibition (regardless of the medium). A second prize of $100 is destined for the best oil painting, approximately 25x30 or larger. The third prize of $50 is the President's purchase prize and goes to the best water-color. There will be two fourth prizes of $25 each, the Society purchase prizes in graphic arts and photographs. The fifth prize of $50 will reward the artist showing the best piece of decorative art or craft. The prizes are open to all members, including former prize winners.

PAUL KLEE, pronounced the most celebrated of German ultra-modernists, is being made "important" again by an exhibition of his work at the Oakland Art Gallery. Klee's abstract designs are pure inventions and the fact being what it is, the value of these inventions resides mostly in the grandeur of the terminology which one may have been able to elaborate in their honor. In the excitement of art experimentation one may have taken even Klee seriously. The experiment is over and Klee's work takes its place in the filing cabinet as a spurious and perplexing document of an age full of aberrations.

THE First Graphic Arts Exhibition of the San Francisco Art Association opened a few days ago at the San Francisco Museum of Art, to continue until Oct. 13.

The exhibition is entirely limited to watercolors, pastels, drawings and prints. There are 154 artists represented (most of them by only one work). The list of exhibitors constitute a fairly complete "Who's Who" in the graphic arts world in California. Portland, Ore., is represented and so are Taos, New Mexico, Chicago, Illinois, Cincinnati, Ohio, Lark, Utah, and Tulsa, Oklahoma. New York appears in the catalogue with the lone name of J. Paddock. Watercolor artists, engravers and draughtsmen of note in San Francisco and vicinity are included and that means, among others, Maxine Albrow, Frank Bergman, Ray Bertrand, Esther and Helen Bruton, Ray Burrell, Mallette Dean, William Gaskin, Edward Hagedorn, Sydney Joseph, Maurice Logan, Moya Del Pino, Chiura Obata, Nelson Poole, Worth Ryder, Sergey Scherbakoff, Antonio Sotomayor, Ralph Stackpole, Michael Von Meyer, Hamilton Wolf and Shotwell Goeller Wood.

The first prize winner in this exhibition is Moya Del Pino, who is awarded the $100 Anne Bremer Purchase Prize for the best watercolor in the show. The title of the winning picture is "Saints and Sinners."

The four San Francisco Art Association purchase prize of $50 each have been awarded thus: Ralph Stackpole, for a pencil drawing of a "head"; Esther Bruton wins with her etching "Market Scene No. 2"; Ray Bertrand for his lithograph "Fallen Monarch," and Mallette Dean for "Moraga," considered the best block printing in the exhibition.

The jury of awards was composed of William Hesthal, chairman; Nelson Poole and Lee F. Randolph. The awards were decided upon last Monday, after a whole day session on the part of the jury.

A NATION-WIDE project, sponsored by the WPA for professional artists, musicians, writers, photographers and persons with dramatic training has been approved at Washington, according to advice received from the national capitol by Frank Y. McLaughlin, state WPA administrator.

McLaughlin was advised that the national project will supersede all local district and state projects previously submitted. However, projects now being carried on in any of these fields will be continued until the national project is under way.

Florence L. Hefling Moves "Whatnot" Shop

That charming little shop "The Whatnot" which has so long graced one of the spaces in the Seven Arts Building, has moved to the corner of Seventh and Lincoln where Florence L. Hefling has established it.

The new location is quite as convenient as the old, and affords a more home-like method of display for her rich wares in old glass, brass, china, silver and copper.

The visitor may now view the merchandise daily, and Mrs. Hefling especially invites a visit at this time.

Skonhott Recital Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow evening the Denny-Watrous Gallery presents Steen Skonhott, baritone, in song recital, with Ernst Bacon at the piano. Enthusiasm over this event is running high. The attraction is double, for "Ernst Bacon at the piano" in itself is enough to draw out a music-loving public.

Steen Skonhott sings a group of Mr. Bacon's songs, some of which will be heard for the first time in public. Mr. Skonhott's dramatic, vibrant voice, unusually beautiful and expressive in quality, has warmed and ripened during his summer in Carmel, and has those who have not recently heard him looking forward to tomorrow night with anticipation.

The program is exceptionally interesting. Old Italian, German lieder, Norwegian songs and the songs by Ernst Bacon are offered. The full program is as follows:

Sento nel core, Scarlatti; Vezzosity e care, Falconieri; Die Krahe, Der Sturmische Morgen, Tauschung, Der Wegweiser, Schubert;

Solvat (Silver), Thorvald Lammer; Der skreg en fugl (There cried a bird), Christian Sinding; Du gamle mor (Thou old mother), Edward Grieg; Sidste reis (Last Voyage) Eyvind Alnes.

Grand is the Seen, The Last Invocation, One Thought ever at the Fore, Darest Thou Now, O Soul, Ernst Bacon.

RETURN TO TEXAS

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Burchard of El Paso, Texas, who have been in Carmel for the past three months, left for home Monday. They expect to return here soon to reside.

State WPA Administrator to Talk at Women Voters' Convention

FRANK Y. McLAUGHLIN, new Works Progress administrator of California and state SERA administrator before that, will make his first visit to the Monterey Peninsula since holding these important positions, and will be one of the outstanding speakers at the fourteenth annual convention of the California League of Women Voters to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday at Hotel Del Monte. Mr. McLaughlin will speak at the 12:15 Wednesday luncheon, participating in panel discussion of "The State Employment Service and Related Problems" with Roy S. Stockton, director of the state employment service. At the same meeting Miss Dorothy Williams will analyze the operation of the new state unemployment insurance measure.

On behalf of the Monterey county league, hostess for the convention, Mrs. Carl Voss, the president, will give the welcoming address at the opening session of Tuesday morning. Response will be given by Mrs. George Mangold, and Mrs. Paul Eliel, state president, will conduct the morning's business session.

"The merit system as I see it" will be the theme of Tuesday's luncheon meeting, at 12:15, with panel discussion by William Brownrigg, executive of the state personnel board; W. Herbert Graham, secretary and chief examiner, Oakland civil service commission; Harry P. Royer, State Employees Association; Senator Sanborn Young, chairman of the California state civil service investigating committee; and Mrs. Harold Nachtrieb, California member of the national two-year campaign committee.

Beginning at 2:30, the convention will break up into department round tables. Government and its operation will consider "How shall we proceed to make a city or county survey of civil service?" Government and child welfare will discuss the child welfare sections of the social security act and possible local projects for child welfare committees. Government and international cooperation will discuss the present crisis in international cooperation. Government and education will consider the influence of pressure groups in freedom of discussion of subject matter in the schools. Government and economic welfare will present background material to be further developed at the Wednesday luncheon. Fallacies of the proposed "equal rights" amendment will be discussed by the government and legal status of women group. Chairmen of government and legislature will meet with Mrs. Eliel for instruction in the league's 1936 legislative program.

Edwin D. Dickinson, U. C. professor of International Law will be the speaker at the banquet at 7 o'clock; his topic, "America Facing the World Situation October, 1935; the Problem of Neutrality."

"What Next in Legislation as the League Sees It" will be the topic of the special legislative session at 9:30 Wednesday morning. Action on proposed changes in the legislative program will be discussed at the 11 o'clock general session. The November 1936 election, the Tehachapi women's prison, permanent registration, teacher tenure, are some of the topics to be discussed. Speaker at the legislative session will be Richard Chamberlain, assistant district attorney of Alameda county on "Follow-up on the better administration of justice."

Election of officers and other final business will be conducted at the general session beginning at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon.

Arthur W. England returned to his home in San Carlos after sojourn in the Grove for a few days.

HUGE GARDEN TO DEPICT
SAN MATEO FLORAL FIESTA

A garden more than 100,000 square feet in area, all under cover, with the best of the $8,000,000 annual bouquet of cut flowers that are shipped from San Mateo every year on display will be the major feature of the San Mateo County Products and Floral Fiesta.

The huge display will be held in the picturesque Bay Meadows race track, situated about midway between Redwood City and San Mateo, and between the Bay Shore highway and the Camino Real, and easily accessible to both. The dates are Oct. 11, 12 and 13, with a preview on Thursday evening, Oct. 10, which is to be sponsored by a group of prominent peninsula society women.

PERRY NEWBERRY'S MOST THRILLING TALE

"THE HOUSEBOAT MYSTERY"

Published by FRED A. STOKES & CO., of New York

IS HAILED AS ONE OF THE BEST BOYS' STORIES OF ALL TIME

PERRY IS KNOWN TO ALL OF YOU AS A MYSTERY WRITER. "THE HOUSEBOAT MYSTERY" IS A THRILLING STORY THAT EVERY RED-BLOODED BOY WILL ENJOY.

READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS OF "THE HOUSEBOAT MYSTERY"

(Monterey Herald, September 12, 1935)

Perry Newberry, the beloved sage of Carmel, has written numerous books. His latest, The Houseboat Mystery, is a corking adventure story. It was designed for young folks, but its plot is sufficiently lively and colorful to interest adults.

The yarn deals with the thrilling mystery adventure of two boys, Gerry Stone and Red Bicknell. Gerry, on watch on his grandfather's hay barge in the Sacramento river, hears a shot in the dark, apparently coming from the luxurious houseboat of a millionaire. A murder mystery is soon afoot, and the youthful heroes' efforts to ferret out the facts and bring the guilty to justice, are of absorbing interest. Few who start this book will lay it down before it is finished.

Perry Newberry, fortunately for his readers, dates back to the days before the play was supervised. In the '80s boys invented their own games and encountered life and nature unadulterated. For this reason Newberry's heroes have much in common with Mark Twain's immortal Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn. In those days no one came around to analyze the water in the oil swimmin' hole, or to tempt the lads away from actual contact with life.

The boyhood experiences of Irvin Cobb, Robert Louis Stevenson (as exemplified in Treasure Island), Mark Twain and Perry Newberry supplied these authors with precious material. Their books, I venture to say, will be read long after most of the synthetic tales of the present generation have been forgotten.

(Carmel Pine Cone, September 13, 1935)

"The Houseboat Mystery" is the best so-called boys' book that I have read since "Tom Sawyer."

And I still contend that it compares very well with that American masterpiece. The qualification "so-called boys' book" was used because it is a story that will be enjoyed by anyone who likes mystery stories, of whatever age or sex.

The story concerns 16-year-old Gerry Stone, "able seaman" on his grandfather's hay barge, plying the waters of the San Joaquin river between Stockton and San Francisco. Because the lad was playing at being a deep-water sailor, he kept a ship's log, and so chanced innocently to mark down the crucial bit of evidence in a midnight murder, when he heard a shot in the night. Red Bicknell enlists Gerry's aid in clearing ing his brother, a river-pirate, who has been jailed for the killing. The victim is a San Francisco financier, killed on his own houseboat.

Adventure after adventure happens to the two boys as they unravel the mystery. Someone begins to take pot-shots at them, and they take to the wilderness of the San Joaquin sloughs, where for several entertaining chapters they "live off the land."

The tale is well-knit and builds toward a good climax. The author fools you by making it seem easy to detect the slayer, brings in the surprise by the manner in which the guilt is fastened upon him. He cuts a few corners by allowing his youthful hero to tell instantly, by the cut of the jib, whom to trust and whom to distrust—mostly life is not that simple.

"Modern Daze" Good Play But Spoiled by Lack of Direction

By THELMA B. MILLER

WE should like to see a better production of Katherine Brocklebank's play, "Modern Daze" than that which was accorded it here last Friday and Saturday nights. It looks like a good play; the writer has a gift for smooth realistic dialogue and she is chock-full of those double entendres and light epigrams which are the life-blood of farce. But players in farce have to plug, plug and plug for laughs, even at the sacrifice of "acting." Amateurs often do not realize this duty; the result was that some of Miss Brocklebank's best lines fell into a howling silence, because they were not pointed sufficiently to bring them to the attention of the politely smiling audience. Farce depends for much of its sparkle on the build-up it gets from the audience; such a play as "Modern Daze" needs a continuous accompaniment of hearty laughter.

The play appeared to suffer chiefly from insufficient preparation and ineffective direction. It is a sin for farce to drag, and after the first act, which moved with tolerable celerity, the play dragged badly, slowly to a crawl in the third act. Prompting, in a loud firm voice from back stage, was too obviously necessary. Introduction of a trayful of food demoralized the company, indicated that this was the first time they had used props in this scene.

Individual players showed a tendency toward good performances which were not fully realized. Elizabeth Todd and Gertrude Bardarson had their lines and indicated a good grasp of character; Miss Todd as a typical modern girl, the glowing Mrs. Bardarson in the broad comedy role of Swedish maid. Miss Todd needed further direction. Some very effective pauses in her lines were interpreted as forgetfulness and unnecessarily prompted. George McMennamin came into the cast too late to do himself anything like full justice.

Janet Large was so lovely, and so strikingly costumed it was a pleasure to watch her. After starting in the first act with a valid and definite characterization of the frivolous wife and mother, more concerned with rapid phylandering than with the needs of her young daughter, she seemed to lose her grip on the role in subsequent scenes—again, lack of effective direction. Gordon Knoles turned in a good performance as the stiff butler pursued by the ardent Swedish maid, Robert Edgren, Jr., did a fine comedy drunk scene, and indeed this scene, ably shared by Miss Todd, was one of the best in the play.

The two professionals, Lucile Culver and Ronald Telfer, made a brave effort to lift the tempo of the play, and might have succeeded if they had been sure of their lines. William Lingley failed to realize the full possibilities of a rich role, as the futurist artist.

While light in theme and treatment, "Modern Daze" imposes with a deft touch a serious enough problem; the neglect of adolescent children by parents who seek clandestine romance at an age when such phylanderings are both pitiful and silly.

The modernistic setting, mostly in terms of white, was strikingly lovely, and the use of sky-blue draperies was especially effective.

Sunset Students Learn About Eskimos from Alaskan Teachers

WILLIAM ALBEE, who with his wife, Ruth Albee, taught for a year in the village school at Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska, entertained the pupils of Sunset school with a series of talks in the class rooms Wednesday. He told the youngsters all about the 48 Eskimo urchins who composed his school, and with whom the children of Carmel have been carrying on correspondence as part of their school work. The Albees used to live here, in 1929, that was why the Sunset pupils were appointed to the receiving end of the Eskimo correspondence.

Cape Prince of Wales is the westernmost point of the North American continent and one of the windiest places in the world, although the climate is not severe—a range from 60 degrees in summer to 30 below in winter. It is only 50 miles by water from Siberia—the Asiatic mainland can be seen on a clear day. Though commerce is easy and frequent across this small gap, Mr. Albee thinks it more likely that the prehistoric migrations came from further south. He sees a great resemblance between his friends—180 villagers—and the Mongoloid peoples, in their language, implements and customs. Given their choice between a radio program emanating from the United States and one from a Japanese station, they would choose the latter every time, because the music and speech both corresponded more nearly to their own.

Under the Bureau of Indian affairs, the Albees conducted the school with a purely elementary curriculum. The children had not only to be taught English, but a new speech technique, for the Eskimo speaks deep in his throat, not with his lips and teeth and tongue-tip, as we do. The children ranged in age from 5 to 16, and were divided into grades from the kindergarten to the sixth grade. Their native intelligence is good, their progress in direct ratio to their mastery of English.

The American teachers also supervised the handling of the villagers' herd of 20,000 reindeer, gave medical treatment, managed the small store and post office, encouraged a revival of the traditional music and dances. They represented their charges' sole contact with the outside world, save for the commissioner, representing the government, and as the villagers are peaceful and friendly, he is seldom called in to exercise the long arm of the law.

This cape was a famous point of call for whalers long ago, and from this early contact with unscrupulous and brutal white men, the natives got a very bad impression of the whole race. Nowadays, there is little trade. The villagers had a period of prosperity while white foxes and ivory were plentiful. They still sell some ivory and ivory trinkets, but they have little need for money—no taxes in those parts—; live amply and contentedly off the country, very much in their old style. This is a tundra country, there are no trees, not even brush. They burn drift wood and use a little in the construction of their houses, though dug-out igloos are more often used.

THERE'S A REASON . . .

We repair, clean, and press all your clothes
So that no sign of wear and tear shows,
All work guaranteed,
Your purse we don't bleed,
That's why our trade just grows and grows.

TENNIS COURTS; PLEASE!

The mayor's recreation committee seems to have fallen into disuetude since its pretty plan of creating a recreation area centering about the old lagoon has been discouraged as impracticable because of multiple sources of water contamination. We hope the group has not ceased to function, for they were given a problem to solve and they have not yet solved it. When the Sunset school pupils put out their special edition of The Pine Cone last spring they gave us some pretty hot blasts about the scarcity of recreational facilities here. Specifically, they mentioned a swimming pool and tennis courts. We feel a bit guilty about meeting the clear, and we imagine, accusing gaze of our young friends. They put something up to us, squarely.

If the swimming pool is beyond our means at present—and no one seems disposed to present a workable plan whereby we can secure one—tennis courts are not. Much labor goes into the making of tennis courts. This looks like an acceptable WPA project, and it can never be done more cheaply than now. In the city-owned sand dunes is a sheltered, sunny spot where they might be located. If the recreation committee cannot give us all we want and need, let us at least have tennis courts for the kids, and the rest of us who still feel like lobbing balls over the net occasionally.

ORDINANCE NEEDS REVISION

There are certain classes of merchandise which cannot be purchased in any Carmel shop, yet if Carmelites go elsewhere to make such purchases, they cannot secure delivery here unless the out-of-town merchant pays a Carmel business license. Presuming that he is already paying taxes and business licenses in the town where he does business, this seems rather a heavy penalty to pay for a little Carmel trade which is robbing no Carmel merchant.

It is no more than just that trucks from which sales are made should pay the license; this is in line with procedures in many other towns.

As City Attorney Argyll Campbell has said and many others believe, the time has come for revision of the business license ordinance. One section of it, has already been declared unconstitutional, result of the Oakland Towel Company case last winter. The way has been shown to emasculate the provision which the local merchants wanted to be most strong and effective; the $100 new-business fee to deter seasonal establishments. Apparently by leaving stock on consignment in a local shop during the winter it is possible for a shop keeper to close up and leave in the winter, return for the summer and operate on just the same status as year-around businesses. At the same time the $100 fee is an unjust hardship on business people who have a sincere desire to establish themselves permanently, but fail before the probationary year is up. The city attorney made a definite request for a special meeting of the council to take up the revision of the business ordinance. This should be held without undue delay.

OCTOBER WORSHIP

*The sky is a vast minster dome of blue
 These still October days; then let us bring
 Our worship to the dream-lost fields, and sing
 God's silent praise, and win redemption through Communion in its pristine forms—unto
 Heaven uplifting hearts, as wild geese wing
 In cryptic triangles, prefiguring
 The Trinity, in signs forever new.*

*The white peace of the winter hills will come
 With snow's blind heraldry: Then let the chants
 Of churchmen ring through twilight Gothic choirs—
 But Life and Youth are pagan hierophants,
 Who seek God in the maple's scarlet fires,
 And laugh at the gaunt storm-wind's distant drum.*

FAWN-SHADOW

*Once I knew the throb of heart
 For seeing beauty drawn
 A dappled blue, in sudden fear,
 The shadow-flight of fawn.*

*But it was gone so suddenly
 That instant to the sight,
 A heartbeat quickened in the breast
 Less swiftly than its flight.*

*And thus, for having seen the shape
 Of beauty clipped to fear,
 I knew that instant it was gone
 No beauty is austere.*

*But like the shadow running fawn,
 Of dappled light and blue,
 In sudden fear and swifter flight,
 Shapes beauty from the two.*

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

AMERICANS are divided into two kinds of people, those who like to join organizations and those who do not. The latter are one type of rugged individualist. Some of them are narrow, reactionary, hide-bound and intolerant. But I notice this about them; so long as they stand alone, have a set of ideas which does not quite match up with those of their neighbors, they retain a certain capacity to laugh at themselves occasionally, and to realize that their private tenets may not be absolutely the last word in truth and virtue.

But get a dozen people of this type together in an organization and the fat is in the fire. Associating only with those who share their own prejudices, they very soon conclude that they have a monopoly on all the good ideas, that it is their privilege, if not their duty, to go forth and remake the world in their own image. Then they become dangerous.

Individual intolerance is always a little bit amusing, and unless the individual feels the weight of numbers behind him, he will discuss his ideas with you on a friendly basis. But look out for the pressure of sheer numbers if you question the motives or the wisdom of group prejudices.

Over on the corner of Seventh and San Carlos a very nice-looking service station and automobile sales room is rapidly arising. It is made of old brick, and the walls, even in their present incomplete state, have a warm and mellow look. We, and several others, hope that they will be left as they are, with no white-wash.

TREES OR SIDEWALKS?

At last week's council meeting mention was made of the necessity of removing some trees if the Ocean avenue sidewalks are narrowed. "They are great big trees anyway, and ought to be taken out of there," someone said.

If the narrowing of those sidewalks is at the price of even one tree, that is reason enough why it should not be done. Many of us are not convinced that it is either necessary or desirable to narrow the sidewalks. It is true that during the summer parking space is at a premium on Ocean avenue and the traffic has to move slowly because it is bottled up in a single lane between the center parking space and the parallel parking spaces along the curb. But the fact that the cars are compelled to move slowly in the heart of the business district is a good thing rather than the reverse. We are still a pedestrian people; we do not take kindly to the idea of crossing our downtown streets in imminent peril from speeding cars, or to the necessity of installing clanging traffic bells to compel fast traffic to stop long enough to allow us to cross the streets.

Our business area is definitely and purposefully limited in size. Providing parking space downtown for a few more cars—particularly at the cost of the trees which are the glory of Ocean avenue—will solve no problem for long. From now on, with increasing traffic from the outside world, many cars will have to be parked on the side streets and the back streets. The people who just "drive through" the town out of curiosity do our merchants no good and only add to the congestion. There is no good reason to encourage this practice. Those who wish to visit and shop here will find it no undue hardship to park elsewhere than at the exact center of the business district. They will get out and stroll about to see the shops—they do that anyway.

But we foresee a very probable tendency, and perhaps it is not many years distant, to remove not a few, but all the trees from the center strip along Ocean avenue, to slap concrete over the scar and make a fine, wide speedway from the top of the hill to the beach, with plenty of parking space. A tree here, a tree there, and soon the growing, Philistine sentiment—what's the use of any of them? They only obstruct traffic. This is not mere idle fear—a number of old Carmelites have brought troubled rumors to The Pine Cone office. The question is, are the old Carmelites strong enough to oppose this particular tendency towards "progress"?

While we are talking about trees;—we have been told that the pine borers are in our pines to a dangerous extent. We are not good enough naturalists to know if this is true. Can anyone verify it? If it is true we should know it, and take action at once. We are told that pine borers can be controlled, and this would make an ideal WPA project; mostly labor, very little cost for materials.

Every once in a while, someone, usually a buttery-voiced radio philosopher, requotes that old jingle about the two men behind prison bars—one looked down and saw the mud, the other up and saw the stars. You have no come-back to a radio philosopher, the conversation is all one-sided. We have been waiting for one of them to add the comment that of course neither of these prisoners saw the whole picture, which consisted of mud and stars both. Presumably that remark would destroy the point, whatever it is.

Charles "Young" Sharkey Here to Write Story of His Life

SEEKING seclusion in Carmel to write the story of his exciting and adventurous life, Charles ("Young") Sharkey has settled down within sight and sound of the waves, in a house on Scenic avenue. Veteran polar explorer, sailor before the mast before the days of steam-ships, victim of shanghai and of tropic ship-wreck, he has a wealth of material at hand. Once contender for the welter-weight boxing championship, he fought his last fight in 1910, when he retired from the sport. He has been advised that he has stuff for a great book if he writes his experiences just as he tells them, with relish for the quaint sidelights as well as the major adventures. Someone has warned him about literary pirates who steal writers' ideas; he is writing the tale in Hungarian so no one can read it.

With Sharkey here are his three motherless little girls, who will be sent to school in Washington soon, to their mother's people. Sharkey has extensive timber interests in Oregon and Washington, and connections in New York. But he would like to live in Carmel; it gives him the first rest and peace he has known for years, and he feels as if he could write his book here.

Robley of Monterey, raconteur, former actor and Chatauqua speaker, who will give stories and characterizations.

Bowie Collection of Art Exhibited

Part of the Japanese art collection of Henry P. Bowie, the only foreigner, so far as is known, whose spirit was defiled by the Shintoists of the Island Kingdom, is on exhibition in the Art Gallery of the University of California. The collection consists of 39 kakemono or vertical scroll paintings, and will be on exhibition until Oct. 15.

The collection, which was loaned through the courtesy of Allan St. John Bowie of San Mateo, adds new interest to the life of one of the most interesting of all Americans. Henry P. Bowie, a native of Baltimore, abandoned a lucrative law practice to travel and study in the Orient. He was encouraged by Professor John P. Fryer, Agassiz professor of Oriental languages in the University of California, to undertake the study of Chinese art. He settled permanently in Tokyo in 1895 and began a thoroughgoing study not only of Chinese calligraphy but of the Japanese writing and painting technique.

So great an impression did he make on Japanese culture that, upon his death in San Francisco in 1920, the Shintoists participated in a ceremony lasting a hundred days, to deify his spirit. In this ceremony a special shrine, known as Bowie-no-Mikoto, was dedicated to his memory.

The Beneficiary under said Deed or transfer by reason of a breach or default in the obligation secured thereby heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written declaration of default and demand for sale and written notice of breach and of election to cause the undersigned to sell said property to satisfy said obligations, and thereafter on the 27th day of February, 1934, the undersigned caused said notice of breach and of election to be recorded in Volume 388 at page 195 of Official Records in said Recorder's Office.

Serra Monument Finally Cleaned

Something psychic was in the air around last week-end. One of our subscribers wrote in to ask when something was going to be done about removing the unsightly canvas cover from the Serra shrine in Carmel Woods and the smears of brown paint with which mischievous boys daubed the statue of the Padre Presidente several months ago. Before putting this query into Pine Cone print, we drove out to the shrine, discovered that at that very moment three boys were perspiring profusely over the task of scraping the paint, which went on so much more easily than it came off. When they appeared in juvenile court about six weeks ago, the boys were given suspended sentences on the condition that they rectify that and other damage they committed during a night on a rampage.

Jo Mora sculpted the statue, which was unveiled at the opening of the Carmel Woods tract several years ago. He is in charge of the work of restoration.

Mrs. Elizabeth Titus and Miss Clara Baker have returned from a vacation motor trip.

George Arliss Coming Sunday

MR. GEORGE ARLISS' portrayal of the Duke of Wellington in the Gaumont British super-production, "The Iron Duke," which comes to the Filmarte Theatre on Sunday, is said to be remarkable for the light it throws upon the purely human side of one whom the world is rather disposed to view merely as a famous military commander. The film portrait of the Duke by the endlessly resourceful Arliss is that of an autocrat, whose grimly determined manifestations of power and dignity were necessary to the accomplishment of fate's decree, the final crushing defeat of Napoleon Bonaparte, so-called Man of Destiny.

The magnificent Arliss vehicle comes to local picture fans following its initial ovation in London where its world premiere was graced by the presence of His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales, a mark of exceptional distinction; and its later notable American debut at the Radio City Music Hall in New York City.

A notable cast for "The Iron Duke" was assembled by Director Victor Saville, who also filmed "Evergreen" and "Evensong" for Gaumont British. Included in the vast list of distinguished players in the new George Arliss picture portraying famous historic and romantic roles are Ellaline Terriss, Gladys Cooper, A. E. Matthews, Allan Aynesworth, Lesley Wareing, Edmund Willard, Norma Varden, Peter Gawthorne, Felix Aylmer, Gibb McLaughlin, Gerald Lawrence, Farron Souter, Walter Sandos, Frederick Leister, Gyles Isham and Annie Esmond.

Traffic Squad at School Appointed

With Gordon Ewig as captain, the following boys have been appointed to duty on the Sunset school traffic squad, to protect children crossing the street in the vicinity of the school and to report traffic violations of drivers endangering the safety of the pupils:

From the eighth grade, Robert Jackson, Larry McLaren; seventh grade, Monty Stearns, Jerry Ray, George Goessel, Charles Candia, Hugh Dormody; sixth grade, Jack Harner, Howard Levinson, Charles Gansell, Bob Haller, Eade Jordan, Jimmy Kelsey, Don Morton, Bill Klein, Bob Morton, Peter Boise; fourth grade, Dick Pelton, Baird Bardarson, Robert Gansell, Billy Christensen.

It will be the duty of the traffic squad to see that children do not cross San Carlos between Ocean avenue and Twelfth except at traffic lanes. Excessive speed or traffic violations on the part of automobile drivers are to be reported to the police. Promptness in reporting for duty, courtesy and efficiency are stressed. The work of the school traffic squad is considered invaluable as a safety and educational feature, and has the strong backing of the California Automobile Association, based on data proving its effectiveness.

Boys will be assigned to duty in the north and south lanes from 8:30 to 9:01; 11:44 to 1:01; 12:40 to 1:10; 2:45 to 2:55; 3:29 to 3:40.

Rosary Service Held for Miss Agatha McDonald

Death claimed Miss Agatha McDonald, for six years a resident of Carmel, Tuesday after a brief illness. Miss McDonald was born 50 years ago, in Jersey City, New Jersey. She was a sister of Father E. E. McDonald of Carmel. Rosary service was held Wednesday night, followed by funeral service at 9:30 yesterday morning, at San Carlos Church in Monterey and burial in the Monterey Catholic cemetery, with T. A. Dorney mortuary in charge.

Victor Dias Called By Death In Carmel

Funeral services were held Monday morning for Victor Dias, who passed away Sept. 26, at the age of 59, in his Carmel home. He was a native of Carmel Valley and had lived in this region all his life. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Julia Dias of Oak Grove, and a brother, Mike Dias of Carmel. Burial was in the Monterey Catholic cemetery, with the T. A. Dorney mortuary in charge.

Eighteen New Pupils at Sunset This Year

Check of Sunset school enrollment figures at the close of the first month of school revealed that the school is larger by 18 pupils than it was this time a year ago. At the beginning of October last year, there were 373 pupils, including the kindergarten. This week's enrollment stood at 391.

Golfers Prepare for Sweepstakes

The first of the week-end golf sweepstakes which are to be held at Del Monte throughout the fall months will take place Sunday.

In these tournaments, which have proved their popularity in many private clubs, teams of two play against par of the course on the old Del Monte course.

All members of each foursome drive from all tees. Each team then selects the most advantageous tee shot and continues the play of the hole by alternate strokes.

Good players and poor players alike can enter the tournament. Often a 30-handicap player is coupled with a scratch man, but the play of the ball becomes interesting to the top-hole player as he finds himself in positions that he would never ordinarily get into, and, of course it is duck soup for the poor golf player to play with a scratch man.

A large number of entries are expected for the opening event.

Mrs. C. M. Owen of San Jose is spending two weeks in the Grove.
